Economic Challenges in Enlarged Europe

10th International Conference & Summer School

17–22 June 2018
Tallinn, Estonia

Call for Papers

Following the 2009–2017 events with participants from a large number of countries, Tallinn University of Technology will host the 10th Conference & Summer School “Economic Challenges in Enlarged Europe” from 17–22 June 2018 in Tallinn. The event is organised in collaboration with Eesti Pank (Central Bank of Estonia) and Association for the Study of East European Economies and Cultures (USA).

You are invited to submit papers for presentation and discussion. We would especially encourage submissions on:

- macroeconomic effects and economic policy considerations under global change;
- consequences of economic fluctuations on the financial sector and related opportunities;
- real sector implications and labour market responses to the changing economic environment;
- economic development and convergence/ disintegration issues in enlarged Europe;
- work arrangements in the changing socio-economic context;
- financial decisions and considerations in the complex economic environment;
- comparative regional studies (e.g. Nordic countries, CEE countries, Western/Southern European countries, non-EU countries etc).

Submissions on other topics falling under one of the thematic tracks below are also very welcome.

Conference Tracks

- Macroeconomics
- Work and Labour Market
- Finance
- Economic Environment
- International Business

Short Courses

The short courses from 20–22 June 2018 will focus on topics from behavioural economics. We have the honour of hosting Associate Professor Erik Angner from Stockholm University and Senior Researchers Emrah Aydinonat and Michiru Nagatsu from the University of Helsinki as the course instructors.

Submissions

Authors are invited to submit extended abstracts of their papers by 15 March 2018. The Academic Committee will review all submissions and the submitting authors will be notified of the decision by 1 April 2018.
